

Seeking SCOPE Submissions

Instant
dark no space between the firefly and my eye

It's SCOPE time again! Time to brush off your artistic abilities and submit your works of poetry, prose or art to SCOPE, SIU School of Medicine's creative arts magazine produced by SIU medical students. SCOPE is entering its second decade of publication.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three entries in the three categories.

Drop off or mail your submissions by 4 p.m. Dec. 5 to:

SCOPE
c/o SIU Department of Medical Humanities 913 N. Rutledge St.
P.O. Box 19603
Springfield, IL 62794-9603

For inspiration, and to learn more about submitting, check out the updated SCOPE Web site at www.siumed.edu/pubs, which includes all the contents of the past 10 years.

Entries do not have to be related to medicine. A reception will be held in conjunction with the release of the magazine next May.

ASPECTS Wins APEX Award of Excellence

Writer Karen Carlson and photographer Jim Hawker received an APEX 2003 Award of Excellence for producing Aspects the official publication of SIU School of Medicine.

The APEX Awards for Publication Excellence is an international competition that recognizes outstanding publications from newsletters and magazines to annual reports, brochures and Web sites.

It is sponsored by Communication Concepts Inc., of Springfield, Va., which publishes business communication reports.

Aspects is published quarterly by the SIU School of Medicine Office of External and Health Affairs, under the direction of Associate Provost Phillip V. Davis, Ph.D. Aspects' mission is to inform and educate readers with news and feature articles highlighting the School's activities, programs, research projects and health-care treatments at the School of Medicine's Springfield and Carbondale campuses.