

Teaching and Learning in Medicine Editorial Internship Program

APPLICATION FORM

Please email a completed application form along with supplemental materials to tlm@siumed.edu using the subject header "TLM Editorial Internship Application." Applications are due Tuesday, 23 February 2021, 5:00pm Central Time (2300 GMT).

What is your name? _____

Do you belong to a racial or ethnic group other than those over-represented in medical education scholarship (ORMES) (e.g. white/Caucasian)? If so, describe in a line or two, why you do not belong to majority ORMES:

What is your self-identified race or ethnicity? (Please select all that apply.)

- Black or African American
- Hispanic or Latinx
- Alaska Native
- Indigenous Tribe Member
- Native Hawaiian or other Pacific Islander
- Other (please specify): _____

Are you first generation in medicine? in academia?

What is your institution and departmental affiliation? _____

What is your role in your institution's educational mission?

- Educational Administrator (e.g., Dean, Associate Dean)
- Clerkship Director
- Residency Program Director
- Full-time Teacher/Instructor
- Part-time or Adjunct Teacher
- Postdoc or Doctoral Student
- Resident or Fellow
- Other (please specify): _____

What is your highest degree earned?

- MD / MBBS
- PhD or other doctoral degree (e.g., EdD, PsyD)
- Master's Degree
- Other (please specify):

What are your medical education areas of passion or expertise? (Please list).

Supplemental materials (required):

- Please submit a personal statement describing your reasons for applying to the internship program, your goals for the program, and your plans for how new knowledge and skills from the program will be used. (500 word maximum)
- Please submit either a curriculum vitae (CV) or a scholarly biographical statement (500 word maximum) summarizing your involvement in medical education scholarship, including (as applicable) previous publications, conference presentations, posters, scholarly self-development activities, and educational innovations.
- Please submit one letter of endorsement that speaks to your scholarly potential and the anticipated career benefits that program participation will bring (e.g., leadership roles, promotion, etc.).